INTRODUCTION

In the last three decades, the issue of youth as a leader has become a warm conversation in global discourse, with all its advantages both physically and creatively and courage to take decisions, young leaders are expected to provide solutions to problems that occur in the region. Currently the term millenial generation is a lot of popping, it is due to the characteristics of this generation is growing rapidly in various countries. This generation is a generation born after Generation X, a person born in the 1980s and 2000s. So this means millenials are young people aged 17-37 this year. Millennials themselves are considered special because this generation is very different from the previous generation, especially in matters relating to technology. Millenial generation is expected to develop as this generation becomes one of the hope of the birth of competent human resources in the future.

To get a Human Resources who have leadership qualities at a young age is not an easy matter, at least the leader must have 4 aspects; first; intelligence, as the basic capital to understand the root of the problem and determine the solution and find a way to concoct the vision forward. second; Honesty and trustworthiness, the support of intelligence that becomes the main bone of leadership, honesty in the course of history is the most important component with the intelligence required of the soul of a leader. Third; Good communicators, ability to communicate, influence, mapping problems, and have high confidence is another aspect that must exist in the soul of a leader. Referring to these criteria, it is very difficult to obtain the Human Resources with leadership qualities in their young age, especially in large numbers.

In the next development into the 21st century, the spirit of leadership is perceived to be dry of human values, as a result many leaders are found to be the cause of new problems emerging, hBudaya as a social reality living in society has become one inseparable and have a great influence on human attitudes and nature. If we refer to culture as a basis of human life, then man can actually maximize the cultural values that exist in his social life to be a foothold in achieving the civility and prosperity aspired by many founders of the nation throughout the world. If the values of intelligence, honesty, and ability to influence can be combined harmoniously with local culture, it is likely to produce high-level leadership qualities with a down-to-earth translation.

Based on this, we of the Reform Institute for Civil Society and Democracy (RISDEM Institute) take the courage for taking some responsibility of the government and the wider community to be part of preparing young leaders for a bright future. With theme "Risdem Institute Rises Religious Young Millenial Leaders For A Bright Future Of Humanity Through Local Wisdom." We will build young leaders with well-planned programs with youth participants representatives from each region of Indonesia as well as overseas participants which will be described in the following pages hereinafter on this proposal.

Hopefully what we hope can be achieved, with open arms we receive help and advice for the implementation of this activity well. We also invite agencies and individuals to contribute materially and non-material to succeed the program. May God reward us all. Aamiin.
